"For some of the houses I was the highest bidder, and at a rental of $1,800 I got them. My bidding was simply a speculation. I hoped to rent the houses and make money on them. Thanks to Justice Bolte I am out on this month alone over $200, and altogether am out $800, but if I can find any law to make him pay for it, I will certainly avail myself of it.

"Among the houses which I rented from the city was the one at 55 Mulberry street. The tenants had all agreed to pay their rents, but when rent day came, on the first of this month, they refused to do so, claiming that the city owned the property.

"Well, I went there yesterday with my lawyer," he continued, "and what do you think happened? Why, the moment he saw me Justice Boite said:

"What! do you think I am going to hear your cases to-day? Do you know what day it is? Why, Justice Divver's son is to be married to-day, and I can't listen to you."

"That simply took my breath away. I did not know what to say at first. Then I asked him if he would make an order requiring the tenants to deposit the month's rent with him, pending a settlement of the ownership question. I pointed out that this month was practically over, and that as an act of simple justice he ought to do that.

"He said he had nothing to do with that, and the cases would all have to go over until Sept. 24. That of course meant that even if the cases would be heard then I would lose my rent, because the tenants could easily move out.

"It was more than I could stand, and I let fly at him. I said that although I had lost through him over $200 on the month I would spend ten times that amount to get it back from him, and I will. I will sue him for every dollar of it and all that it has cost me.

"I denounced the gang as a lot of Tammany heelers, from whom it seemed impossible to obtain justice. I saked him what business it was of mine whether Jimmle Divver got married or not, and whether he was paid for attending Divver marriages, and Divver picnics, or for attending to the business of he court. Well, he talked back at me, and after a time I backed out.

"Now, you can say this for me, that mone of that gang has power to fix me, and I will push this case sagnist.

"I think I know the real reason for acting against me. Last year the Italians took 130 of the Divver Club; tickets, at $5 each. This year the Italians only took eleven tickets. ### MISS SHIRLEY BEATEN.

The Actress Will Have to Pay Bootmaker Azzimonti's Bill and Costs. Bootmaker Azzimonti, who sued Actress Madeline Shirley in the Sixth District Civil Court a week ago to re-cover the price of three pairs of stage boots, has got his judgment. Miss Shirley will have to pay, not only the $24 which was the contract price of the boots, but $9.78 costs besides.

There is no question but that the de-cision of the learned Court, who, by the way, is Justice Stiner, is most trying to Miss Shirley, not alone from the fac that she will have to pay the money, but because of the disappointment she has suffered in being beaten.

When the proceedings before Civil Justice Stiner were ended, not a person in the room doubted that Miss Shirley had the Court with her. Not only had several very pretty actress friends of the defendant testified that the boots were devoid of fit, and that they positively spoiled the rounded symmetry of Miss Shirley's pedal extremities, but the sprightly actress allowed the learned Judge to satisfy himself of this fact by ocular demonstration.

When Miss Shirley learned to-day that she had lost her case it made her positively ill. that she will have to pay the money but because of the disappointment she ishe had lost her case it made her positively ill.

Justice Stiner, in his opinion, holds that, although there was no question as to the faultiness in the fit of the boots, the defendant, he thinks, should have returned them at once, instead of waiting until she received the bootmaker's bill before entering her protest against the quality and shape of the footgear.

The decision against Miss Shirley will not, however, interfere with her bringing a suit for damages against Azzimonti for injuries received from a fail on the stage, which, she claims, resulted from her catching her toe in the too-full leg of one of the boots.

They say the two left Webb City in the stolen rig, but at Sedalia the man deserted her.

Mr. Steckier has secured an order of arrest, issued by Judge Fitzsimmons of the City Court, holding Katzman in ball pending the suit.

They were then driven to the West Thirtieth street police station. They were still in their trance, and were carried to cells in the arms of policemen. They awoke in the middle of the night, and, discovering their plight, set up a wail of anguish that moved the case-hardened policeman very deeply, but nothing could be done for them. Policeman Ryan brought the girls around to the court. On the way they said they must have been drugged or have been in singularly susceptible condition, as they only drank a quart of champagne aplece, and had often gotten away with that quantity without any evil results.

Justice Hogan looked at them pityingly and called them up within the railing.

"You young ladies, for you certainly look to be such, ought to be ashamed of yourselves," said he.

"We are," they chorused, Flora adding a sob to her confession, while Leah contented herself with a mild and apprehensive look.

"I'll let you go this time, but in the future dine with more discretion," said the Judge.

They Consider O'Neills's Display Simply Marvellous.

Never in the history of their establishment have H. O'Neill & Co. had a finer display of goods in their millinery and ladies' suit departments than is a present on exhibition. The creations in both departments of American and for eign designs, are simply magnificent and the fair ones will do well to give the house a call before purchasing their fineries for the Fall and Winter. The display in the millinery department is especially worthy of commen-dation. Some of the dainty pieces of headgear are marvellous in their construction. Large hats, mostly of th Gainesborough order, are of course, the thing for this Fall, and the firm, as Gainesborough order, are, of course, the thing for this Fall, and the firm, as usual, is right apace with the style. A large green velvet hat, with lace insertion in the rim, beautiful green tips and steel ornaments, is among the most noticeable. Another is a very large black velvet hat, with jet insertion in the rim, and a marble pink crown trimmed with chiffon, jet ornaments and enormous black feathers. A black Gainesborough, trimmed with black velvet, and satin bows, and beautiful black plumes is also conspicuous.

The reception hats are also very pretty. One of the most noticeable is of azure marble velvet, trimmed with white chiffon and pompons, puffs of chiffon on the edge, and slik rosettes. It white chiffon and pompons, puffs of chiffon on the edge, and slik rosettes. It immed with black satin ribbon, tips and algrettes, held by dainty steel buckles, is very nice. The ladies' suit and cloak department offers splendid opportunities for the leaders of fashion. Some of the gowns are simply delicious in their get-up. One,

HOT SHOT FOR BOLTE. dignation began to rise as he thought of it. "What did Justice Botte do? Why, he said he would not hear the cases that day for 100. It was in vain that I protested. Yesterday He Had to Attend Boss Divver's Son's Wedding.

The attaches of Civil Justice Herman Bolte's Second District Court, at Centre Market, witnessed something of a scene there yesterday, in which the Justice himself and an irate complainant were the principal characters. The latter thought himself aggrieved. He complained that it was impossible to ob-tain justice there, and concluded a bitter tirade by denouncing the Court and everybody connected with it as a gang

The complainant in the case, who had the "run in," as those who heard it call it, with Justice Boite, was Vincent Volpe, member of the firm of L. Volpe & Co., bankers and steamship brokers, of 73 Mulberry street. Although an Italian by birth he has been an American citizen for over twenty years. He is one of the wealthlest men in the Italian colony, and until this year was a frequent and liberal contributor to Tammany clubs. Now, however, it is different. He has refused to contribute anything to the Wigwamites. He is a member of nearly every Italian society in the city, and is working with the reformers. This is the story of the scene in court yesterday just as he told it to an "Evening World" reporter:

"When the city acquired all the houses around Mulberry Bend for the purpose of laying out a park there," he said, "the officials advertised for bidders for the houses. The terms were that no yearly leases would be given, but that tenants would be accepted by the month. The idea, as I understand it, was that the houses might be torn down at any time to make way for the park.

came, on the first of this month, they refused to do so, claiming that the city owned the property.

"In order to establish my position, as well as to recover the rent, I brought suit against the tenants in Justice Bolte's court. The cases were set down before him for Sept. 7.

"When that day came around and I appeared in court I found that the tenants had engaged Lawyer James Walsh, a member of the Divver Club, as their counsel. However, that did not worry me, but when Justice Bolte said he could not try the cases that day, as he was preparing for the Divver parade, I was astonished. He set the cases down for Sept. 13.

"Well, that day came around, and Justice Bolte was not ready. He said he had no time then to listen. I told him that every day's delay meant money to me, as I could easily get other tensits for the house. He insisted, however, that he had no time. He said I would have to be satisfied to have the cases tried on the 18th.
